My name is Jabulani Kentane, I was born in the township of Gugulethu in the Western Cape in 1973. However my family relocated to Durban a few years later where I was raised and now reside permanently. After i matriculated, I was went on to achieve a National Diploma in electrical engineering. I then employed by the city of Durban as an apprentice electrician and later qualified as one.

Due to my strong work ethic, commitment, honesty, good leadership and communication skills, I quickly moved up in ranks, and was soon in junior management. Soon after I was head hunted and moved up to senior management. However, having reached the peak in my department, and not being satisfied with having to progress further, I had a rethink about my future.

Therefore in 1998, I decided to resign and pursue a future as a business person. I therefore went to receive training in business and financial matters, and subsequently registered an and now run a successful electrical construction and maintenance business. Not being content with myself, I decided to also pursue and future in the farming industry. The core of it being livestock, mainly the Brahman cattle and goats.

Please join us in welcoming him to his new position and wish him well.
