The BFASA Executive, under the leadership of President Dr. Lennox Xolile Mtshagi is pleased to announce the appointment of Ms. Nasarine Nasir as BFASA Commercial Officer, with immediate effect.

NASARINE NASIR:

I was born in the 70's in Cape Town at Somerset hospital which is now next to one of the world's landmark destinations , the V + A waterfront.

During the mid 70's my family relocated to a dorpie approximately 5 km from George in order to start a small business and sustain a living for themselves. We lived on a small holding with many farm animals surrounded by gravel roads for many years. The one very memorable thing for me, even up until today, was waking up to the sound of birds chirping and the fresh sea breeze of an uninterrupted ocean leading into the gwaing river mouth in Pacaltsdorp, just a stone throw from where we lived.

I first started formal schooling at Pacaltsdorp primary at the young age of 5. Living so far away from a city had its perks. For many of my forming years I was used to primitive living and simple pleasures. We used to eat greens and salads freshly picked from the small holding and on Sundays a common practice was to slaughter one of the many chickens we had roaming around. This was simply delectable.

After attending high school I proceeded to the university of Cape Town to study a degree in Finance. My studies were, in its entirety, funded by a bursary. I completed my B.Comm(Hons) and continued to serve articles and write my board exams.

I then proceeded to work in the city of Johannesburg as many flocked there for it was known to us as the city of Gold and prosperity. For many years I subjected myself to the lifestyle of hustle and bustle, working in the private sector of huge financial institutions and mining conglomerates, until I was headhunted by Sanlam head office in Bellville to accept a position as a Senior Financial Manager. I gracefully returned to the Western cape with great longing to be closer to my family.

After some years working in an organisation which was slow to move with the times and where bureaucratic practice was still very present I decided to venture into my own business.

Without much hesitation I bought a filling station with the brand of Engen and started my journey as a young, under 30, entrepreneur. After a couple of years of running my own business I became somewhat bored and fell back into the profession of accounting.

I did some work for the public sector in combination with the office of the Auditor General and also for the South African Justice Department. This involved a bit of traveling locally and visiting areas I only heard of before.

To this day, I practice as an accountant but less formally than 15 years ago. I have a vast knowledge of tax, auditing, financial accounting, management accounting, reconciliations, and compliant and statutory record keeping. I have done financial consulting for a variety of industries, some of them being in business rescue and in financial distress.

I have also lectured part time upon request from universities in financial accounting and auditing.

Currently, in my forties, I do a number of report writing for companies with the aim of streamlining their financial departments and giving guidelines on how to maximize financial and support functions with limited resources.

My objective currently, remains to keep my mind busy, working it all the time, sometimes in overdrive, as it keeps me moving with the times.

Please join us in welcoming her to her new position and wish her well.
