

"Passionate about sustainable solutions, I'm on a mission to fix our lands, grow organic food, and create earth-friendly products that heal our bodies naturally. Mother Nature holds the key to our well-being, and it's high time we show her the respect she deserves.."

TR/DR TERRY MAY GILBERT

My love affair with Africa began in my vibrant childhood, traveling with my parents and immersing myself in diverse cultures and captivating landscapes. These experiences shaped me into who I am today, fostering an immense appreciation for this extraordinary continent.

While my corporate journey encompassed roles in administration and travel, my true calling has always been in healing, farming, and business. In 2011, I bid farewell to the corporate world to pursue my passions, launching ventures in engineering, construction, tenders, catering, healing & wellness, organic formulation of various products and more. Every day that I can help someone feel better and happier is a day well lived.

Guided by the wisdom of my grandmother, who's way of life was one of being a natural organist, my mother who is a remedial therapist, soil nurse, horticulture and permaculture specialist as well as healers worldwide, I embarked on an enriching path of traditional and natural medicine. I have embraced my African and Asian Heritages as I believe these two cultures have given the world the richest knowledge of healing through natural medicine. Through diligent research, study and practical experience, I've acquired my expertise in holistic therapies and natural wellness solutions. Together, we can pave the way for a greener, healthier future.

My vision is to join forces with green industrial communities, sparking a movement that rebuilds economies, restores our precious lands, and empowers communities to grow their own organic food and build sustainable homes; by harnessing the wonders of natural resources, we can foster independence and rejuvenate Africa while mending our struggling economies.

Let's embark on this exciting journey of Green Healing Africa, where the power of nature brings harmony and prosperity to both people and the earth we call home.